AID TO ROOSEVELT URGES REWRITING OF BANKING LAWS

"Brain Trust" Berle Particularly Impressed With Need for Revising Deposit Guarantee Feature of Glass Act.

TEMPORARY VALUE SEEN IN GUARANTEE

Professor Advises Reshaping of Laws at Next Session of Congress. Sees Hardships for Banks

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—A thorough revision of federal banking laws, especially of the Glass-Steagall act embodying a deposit insurance plan, was called for today by Professor A. A. Berle, of Columbia University, one of President Roosevelt's economic advisers.

Berle, addressing the Savings Bank Association of the state of New York, said he believed the next session of congress would be ready to adopt an improved act.

The association later heard a special committee report that a permanent plan of deposit insurance was "unsound in principle and does not offer an ultimate solution of the banking problems of the country. Delegates voted, however, to defer action until a special meeting.

Excellent Job. "I feel that Senator Glass did an excellent job with the Glass-Steagall act of 1933," said Berle, "that he got what he could and that it was a great administrative achievement.

"But I think he would be the first to see in his forthright and fascinating way, if you were to ask me, that he could do a better job."

"For one thing, under the deposit insurance plan there is a tremendous number of commercial banks who will find it extremely difficult to make a living."

Certain administration rulings, he said, are called for during the functioning of the temporary deposit insurance plan.

"There should be an emphatic pronouncement against the undue 'twisting' of funds—the attempt to sprinkle money all over the United States in lots of $2,500," he asserted.

"There should be a definite differential between the 60-day time deposit certificate which a commercial bank may issue, within the guaranty, and a savings bank deposit. The rate of interest ought to be lowered on the former rather than on the latter."

Not Linked. "In other words, commercial bank ought to be encouraged to do commercial banking and not through the medium of its time deposit to compete with the savings bank. Otherwise you still further mix commercial banking and savings banking—experience has shown that the two do not belong together."

"You will readily see that I do not regard the present deposit insurance feature of the Glass-Steagall act as either a logical solution or a permanent solution of the difficulty. I sympathize with it, because plainly the banks of the country—this is more true elsewhere than it is here—must be made safe for all depositors."

3,000 $5 'Buy' Checks Issued by Edison Firm

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 17. (AP)—Charles Edison, president of the Thomas A. Edison Industries, and vice chairman of the New Jersey state recovery board, today distributed a check for $5 to each of his 3,000 employees.

The checks were printed in the NRA red and white colors and bore the admonition "Now is the time to buy."

Each employee also received a printed card reading "President Roosevelt is doing his part. NRA was the first step in his great recovery program. The buying campaign is the second great step. Start by buying something with this check. Something that you would not have bought unless you received it."

WIGGIN PROFITED WHILE BANK LOST, HEARING REVEALS

Total of $1,500,000 Given Chase National Head in Five Years; $100,000 Is Yearly Pension.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Immense earnings by Albert H. Wiggin from bonuses, salary and extra pay from other corporations while the Chase National bank, of which he was head, was losing millions were added up today before the senate banking committee.

The total compensation of the former chairman of Chase National was given nearly $1,500,000 for the past five years. When he retired last winter he was voted $100,000 a year for life by the executive committee.

Testifying in a deep voice, the banker said his associates "always suggested the 'additional compensation' he was to receive."

"And I helped to fix theirs," he added.

"I helped to fix theirs and they helped to fix mine," asked Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel.

"Yes, we all sat in together," Wiggin replied.

Loses on Loans. Pecora developed also that part of the losses of Chase National were from loans to heads of companies from which Wiggin drew compensation as an officer.

Included was a debit of approximately $3,100,000 owned by General Dahl, chairman of the board of the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit Company, with collateral against the loan was $250,000.

R.F.C. Chairman Asks Atlanta Bankers To Make Immediate Cotton Loans, Ease Credit Stringency

Atlanta banks Tuesday were asked by Jesse Jones, chairman of the board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to issue preferred stock in order to make more funds available for loans, the R. F. C. to purchase the stock. The above photograph shows the bankers who conferred with Mr. Jones. Seated from left to right are T. K. Glenn, president of the Trust Company of Georgia; Mr. Jones; H. Adamson, secretary of the Atlanta Clearing House.

The three members of the Atlanta Clearing House Association Tuesday were asked by Chairman Jesse Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to issue several million dollars worth of preferred stock to be subscribed by the R. F. C. and to make immediate loans on cotton which later will be taken up by the federal government. The bankers also were asked to take steps to bring about an immediate easing of the credit situation by more loans to farmers, small businessmen and corporations.

The corporation chairman, who came to Atlanta Tuesday with Postmaster General James A. Farley and a group of other federal officials, was closeted in secret session with bankers representing the First National, the Fulton National and the Citizens & Southern National for some time, but at the conclusion of the conference refused to divulge himself what had taken place behind the closed doors.

It is understood that the three Atlanta banks took the proposal under advisement and will act individually on it.

Mr. Jones detailed the government's plan for aiding the credit situation through the banks, the money supplied by the R. F. C. to be used in making loans and thereby expanding credit generally.

Mr. Jones urged the members of the clearing house association to "set an example" for the south by taking part in the distribution of government funds through preferred stock issues and obtaining loans for cotton farmers through the new Commodity Credit Corporation.

His appeal for them to use part of the $250,000,000 set aside Monday by the R. F. C. for commodity corporation cotton loans brought a statement from Mr. Jones urging the members of the clearing house association to "set an example" for the south by taking part in the distribution of government funds through preferred stock issues and obtaining loans for cotton farmers through the new Commodity Credit Corporation.

Chicagoan "Talks" Way Out of Kidnaper's Hands

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—(AP)—William Wright, Oct. 17, owner of a night club, who disappeared last Friday night, appeared tonight with a story that he had been kidnapped by several men who demanded $15,000 ransom, none of which was paid.

He said he obtained his release by convincing one of the kidnapers, who was acting as his jailer, that the abduction was a serious mistake in view of the government's recent activity in striking at the kidnaping racket.

Hall told his story to Lou Leider, owner of a bar at 22 North Crawford, avenue, and one of Hall's schoolmates. He said his jailer had driven him in an automobile to Madison and Crawford streets, from which point he made his way to Leider's bar.

Clark quits post as jury foreman in stormy session.

Resignation Follows Head's Visit to Talmadge; Hard, McDuffie, McRae See Governor.

Sudden resignation of P. A. Clark Tuesday as foreman of the Fulton county grand jury, following hard on the heels of Clark's visit to Governor Talmadge with a reported request for appointment of a special solicitor-general and judge to probe Fulton affairs, resulted in election of A. L. Myers, prominent furniture dealer, as the new foreman of the jury.

Resignation of Clark after a stormy session of the grand jury was coincident with a conference with Governor Eugene Talmadge by Straffen Hard, of the Fulton county bar, and W. G. McRae, attorney, who opposed Solicitor-General John A. Boykin in the last election.

Although the principal purpose of the visit of the trio to Talmadge's office was said to have been a conference on reappointment of four judges of the municipal court of Atlanta, it was reported that the county probe asked by Clark may have been discussed.

Clark remained a member of the jury following his resignation as foreman, but on his own request was excused from the remainder of the day, it was said.

The resignation followed a visit of the jurors to Judge John D. Humphries, in charge of the criminal division, in his chambers, where a request of the jury for a private interview with the jurist was granted.

Following Clark's action, his resignation was ordered spread upon the minutes of the jury for a private interview with the jurist was granted.

Hard, McDuffie and McRae declined to comment upon their conference with the governor, but Talmadge estimated that the visit was in connection with the municipal court appointments, which, he said, will not be made hastily, as the terms of judges must be considered.

Judges up for reappointment on nominations by the superior court judges are: Luther Z. Rosser, Ralph McClelland and L. E. Etheridge, of the Fulton division, and W. T. Buchanan, of the DeKalb division.

Clark's action in calling on Governor Talmadge for "technical information" was disquieting to the grand jury last week, it was said, but no action was taken. The foreman was

HITLER ATTITUDE TOWARD LEAGUE REMAINS IN DOUBT

Germany Has Not Yet Formally Withdrawn From World Body and Reports Are That She Is in No Hurry To Do So.

GENEVA HOPEFUL OF NAZIS' RETURN

Hitler Spokesman Says Nation Will Respect Versailles Pact But Expects Others To as Well.

By the Associated Press. Spokesmen for the French and British governments bitterly assailed Germany Tuesday for withdrawing from the disarmament conference.

Sir John Simon, the British foreign secretary, declared Germany "jeopardized, if not wrecked," the arms parity by her "last moment" attitude.

Premier Daladier, speaking at the opening of the French parliament, asked "if Germany is ready to destroy all armaments, why do they withdraw from the conference just when we drafted a plan?" He said France was ready to proceed with arms discussions.

Other developments in the European situation. Berlin—Spokesmen for Chancellor Hitler said Germany intends to live up to treaty obligations, but refused to answer questions regarding the reich's plans in regard to formal withdrawal from the League.

Geneva—The outcome of the disarmament conference was considered by many observers to be a determining factor in Germany's plans to consummate her decision to withdraw.

Vienna—Evidence of a "military conspiracy" to overthrow the Austrian government, and a general strike menaced Austria.

Rome—Italian newspapers demanded that the four-power European peace pact be implemented to solve the disarmament situation, and one of them predicted that the resumption of disarmament conversations "new exchanges of viewpoints and negotiations among the big powers will place outside the League of Nations."

SIR JOHN SIMON SCORES BERLIN'S "LAST MOMENT" BOLT

LONDON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Speaking for the British government, Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon declared today that Germany has "jeopardized if not wrecked" the arms parity by her attitude taken "at the last moment."

He said Germany's withdrawal from the disarmament conference at the last moment was a "last moment" bolt.

PRICE-FIXING ISSUE BEFORE PRESIDENT

Compromise Is Predicted on Retail Code Provision on Regulation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(UP)—The last major question of policy standing in the way of the NRA—retail price fixing—was before President Roosevelt for final settlement tonight, with indications that it would be decided on a compromise basis forbidding merchants to sell any products below cost.

Once this problem is settled, the general retail code, the retail grocery code and the retail drug code can be promulgated with little delay, bringing millions more Americans under permanent NRA agreements for higher wages and shorter working hours.

Furthermore, observers believe, the codes will have a far-reaching effect in stabilizing merchandising.

Simultaneous with announcement of imminent settlement of the price-fixing controversy which has split the recovery administration, General Hugh S. Johnson announced that a bill of the Blue Eagle insignia design, being worked out for establishment of local boards throughout the country to investigate reports of profiteering by merchants.

The local consumer councils being established by the consumers' board of the NRA probably will be in charge of the anti-profiteering work, Johnson said.

Johnson predicted that the retail code would forbid use of "loss leaders" by merchants—that is, sale of one product below cost to attract customers away from other merchants.

The tentative general retail code contains a provision against sales at less than 10 per cent above cost, and the grocery and drug codes contain similar safeguards worked out on a slightly different basis. Consumers' agencies in the NRA and the entire agricultural adjustment administration have opposed these provisions, contending they would serve only to increase costs to consumers.

Johnson covered specific rules for display of the Eagle said that any person might display the emblem so long as he complied with the president's re-employment agreement and that when in the judgment of the administrator, any person had failed to comply it should be surrendered on demand and be not again displayed without his permission. Fine and imprisonment were provided as penalties for violation of these rules.

Employment Continues Rise Although at Retarded Pace

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(UP)—Employment and pay rolls increased in September for the sixth consecutive month, but the rate of improvement was slower than in August, labor department statistics revealed today.

A survey of the 17 industrial and business groups used by the labor department as an index indicated that 2,700,000 persons went back to work in September. This brought total re-employment since the low point of March 2,700,000—far less, it is admitted, than the administration hopes for when it began its recovery drive.

The September pay roll increase was $10,000,000 weekly, and the total increase since March $64,000,000 weekly.

September's percentage increase over August in persons employed and pay rolls was less than half the August increase over July. In August 750,000 persons were re-employed.

Factory employment now stands at the April, 1931, level, and payrolls are at the October, 1931, level.

Increased employment from public works contracts is only slightly reflected in the September figures, Secretary Perkins explained. Both employment and pay roll increases were affected adversely by "sporadic strikes," she said.

WALLACE MAPS CORN, HOG PLANS

Huge Wheat Purchase To Be Effectuated; Cotton Loan Program Perfected

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(UP)—The agricultural adjustment administration and the farm credit administration drove forward tonight on elaborate plans for immediate aid to producers of corn, hogs, wheat and cotton.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace announced in the day the most extensive single project yet inaugurated by the AAA—a $350,000,000 program to enable farmers to reduce corn and hog production and at the same time aid the poor by providing them with more work. It is hoped that this move will reduce corn acreage by at least 20 per cent in 1934 and hog farrowing by at least 25 per cent.

The farm credit administration revealed that it was buying wheat, with 1,000,000 bushels as the immediate purchase limit, to reduce the surplus and feed the hungry. It will be ground into flour and distributed among the unemployed.

Loans on Cotton. Organization of the Commodity Credit Corporation was completed tonight and it will begin at once the distribution of $250,000,000 in loans to cotton planters on their crops. Later its activities may be extended to grains.

Wallace sat with his feet on his glass-topped desk as he announced the corn-hog program, the greatest of all the undertakings of the A. A. A. His vest was unbuttoned and his hair was rumpled.

He denied smilingly that the administration had considered effect of the program on the price of corn liquor, then launched into a detailed explanation of the vast program, designed to reduce America's corn crop by 20 per cent and her hog crop by 25 per cent.

"I hope that the plan will be as attractive enough to take about 12-15 per cent."

Theater Men To Meet Today, Reach Sunday Show Decision

A proposal to operate theaters on Sunday under city council's repeal of the municipal restrictions will be considered today at a meeting of the Atlanta Theater Managers' Association called by Alpha Fowler, president, it was said Tuesday.

Mayor James L. Key, who on Monday afternoon approved the blue law repeal as soon as the ordinance was passed by council, Tuesday said "that he believes that 'the only thing a democracy can do is to carry out the will of the majority.'"

If there are those in the community who are not willing to submit to a majority rule then they should move to some more genial clime; they don't belong to this community at all; they will not thrive in this atmosphere," Mayor Key said. "They do not make good citizens; they are combatting the very principles upon which our government is founded." Mayor Key also said.

Jailed Minister Target of Bullets

JONESBORO, Ark., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Guns blazed again tonight in the factional dispute of the Jonesboro Baptist Tabernacle congregation when a hail of bullets was fired into the cell of the Rev. Dale Crowley, held in the county jail here for the slaying of J. W. MacMurdo, the church janitor.

The minister asleep on a cot in the cell was not wounded. Officers said the fire apparently came from a machine gun.

Lights in the cell blocks were extinguished and Sheriff Johnson immediately started an investigation. Nearby residents told officers they heard an automobile leave the vicinity of the jail as the shots were fired.

Sturdivant, 5 Others Due for Trial Today

Police Chief T. O. Sturdivant, of Atlanta, and five others are scheduled for trial in city criminal court today charged with cheating and swindling in connection with the alleged "police courtesy card racket."

Solicitor John S. McClelland said he had been informed that denunciations in the trial date would be presented on each date and that they must be disposed of first.

Chief Sturdivant had been indicted twice, the first indictment being thrown out of court by Judge Jesse Wood. The chief was indicted by grand jury after an investigation and the case was transferred to the misdemeanor court for prosecution.

Hitler Promises To Punish Nazis Molesting Americans

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—(UP)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler personally gave assurance today to United States Ambassador William E. Dodd that "strong measures" would be taken to prevent recurrence of assaults upon United States citizens in Germany.

"The authorities clearly demonstrated," Dodd said after his interview with Hitler, "that they are determined to apply the strongest discipline to deal with any recurrence of these assaults."

All competent authorities are being warned to look out for and protect our foreigners," Dodd said.

Dodd said that police had been ordered to exercise all necessary measures for intervention in future cases. A full report was expected on all past cases where the assaults of foreigners could be identified.

Blue Eagle Day a Success Here, Local Retail Merchants Report

"Blue Eagle Day" in Atlanta proved to be a practical but effective demonstration of the loyalty of the Atlanta buying public to the NRA program. Thousands came to town and thronged the retail stores of the city.

Tuesday marked the beginning of the buying drive sponsored by the national recovery administration as a vital move toward bringing back good times.

Local merchants under the NRA banner were in charge of the program, assisted by the power company, which gave free rides to the shopping district to prospective shoppers. The street cars were crowded from 8:30 to 10:30 o'clock in the morning.

J. P. Allen, head of the department store bearing his name and president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, said the response to the program by the public not only helped buyers and sellers, but indirectly would lead to improved employment conditions.

H. C. Naylor, president of the Lane Drug Stores, reported a splendid response on the part of the buying public, and said all his stores had enjoyed a thriving trade during the day.

Louis Regenstein declared that the response had been very good, and had met his expectations. "Trade was exceptionally good at his stores," he said.

Grady Duffee, of Duffee-Freeman, said his company had put on special furniture bargains for the day, and he had been kept busy all day waiting on customers.

E. B. Freeman Jr., of Myron E. Freeman & Brother, said that more people had come into their stores, and to others he had noted, than he had seen at several weeks.

A. R. Dorsen, president and general manager of the J. M. High Company, said that local consumers had met the merchants halfway, and shown a splendid co-operation.

Raymond A. Kline, chairman of the merchants' committee which planned the day, said that customers' demands were evident in all parts of his store, and not alone in those where goods had been specially advertised.

Frank M. Stevens, manager of Hannan & Son's Atlanta store, reported satisfactory results for the day and expressed belief that such events, with the leading merchants of the city co-operating, were good for business generally.

JURY INDICTS NEGRO IN SLAYING OF MOSS

Wash Bryant, negro, was indicted by the Fulton county grand jury Tuesday for the murder of Joe Moss, a white man, in a filling station in Union City Sunday. It was reported that Bryant shot Moss as he approached the negro's car to demonstrate about the way it was being driven. The negro was captured by a group of citizens after a short chase in which Bryant's car was wrecked.

Mates Request Raid On Gambling Wives

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17.—(AP)—That proverbial shoe was on the other foot today—six husbands, complaining that their pay envelopes were drained, while wives stayed out late nights, had the women brought into court to break up a card game.

Captain John Connor, who led a detail of police in a raid on the home of Mrs. Becky Schaeffer, explained to the court that he acted on the requests of the husbands. "I'll let you off as first offenders," Magistrate Oswald told Mrs. Schaeffer and the six wives. "Don't appear here again or I'll give you five days in jail."

TWO ALABAMA WOMEN HELD IN BOY'S DEATH

JASPER, Ala., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Two women were being held in the Walker county jail for investigation today following the fatal shooting of J. P. Morgan, 19, at Quinton, Ala., last night.

The two women, Mrs. Cora Gordon, 35, and Mrs. Maude Ross, 30, both of Bessemer, Ala., said they were in the home of a Mr. Green at the time of the shooting.

Mrs. Gordon told officers today that Morgan killed himself following a quarrel with her over a trip he made to a store to purchase groceries. Officers quoted Mrs. Ross as saying that Morgan and Mrs. Gordon quarreled over the $5 Mrs. Gordon had given the youth.

RULE BY MILITARY LOOMS IN AUSTRIA

Threat of General Strike Also Hangs Over Troubled Nation.

VIENNA, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Evidence of a military conspiracy, threats of a general strike, and a hint of martial law mingled ominously today in the Austrian atmosphere.

At the same time Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss prepared to meet Foreign Minister Edouard Beneš, of Czechoslovakia, here tomorrow.

Emphasizing the Czechoslovakian angle of the situation was the confiscation of an influential Praha newspaper, Prager Tagblatt, for circulating socialist instructions for a general strike in Vienna.

The official government gazette in a front page article intimated that martial law might soon be declared, and under headlines reading "Restoration of the Death Penalty" pointed out that "there is an overwhelming popular demand for the restoration of the death penalty."

Newspapers said the martial law that was a warning for both nazis and socialists.

DUKE ESTATE FIGHT BEFORE SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—A contest over a $9,000,000 federal tax on the estate of James B. Duke, who died at Somerville, N. J., in 1925 was waged today in the supreme court.

Solicitor-General James Biggs and Erwin N. Griswold insisted for the government that an estate tax was due on approximately $30,000,000 of property placed by Duke in two trusts for the benefit of his daughter, Doris.

Much of it consisted originally, the solicitor-general asserted, in stock of the American Tobacco Company which Duke subsequently used in forming the Southern Power Company and investments in the aluminum company.

John W. Davis, counsel for the executors of the Duke estate, contended the board of tax appeals and the third circuit court of appeals correctly reversed the commissioner of internal revenue by holding that the property in the two trusts was exempt from the federal estate tax.

FLOWER WOMAN, HELD FOR BLOCKING SIDEWALK, FREED

The case of a little flower woman was dismissed and her companion was given a suspended sentence Tuesday by Recorder A. W. Callaway in police court after details of the arrests by Patrolman W. F. Crumley were explained.

Mrs. Rachel Owens, 65, the flower woman, told Judge Callaway that she set her basket on the sidewalk because she was "tired and wanted to change hands and rearrange the flowers." Policeman Crumley said he had made a case against her once before for putting the basket of home-grown flowers on the sidewalk.

Mrs. H. O. House, operator of a hat shop at 87 Whitehall street, was charged with interfering with an officer, told Judge Callaway she had given Mrs. Owens permission to sell flowers at her store entrance. Miss Helen Douglas, attorney, defended Mrs. Owens and a number of prominent women appeared in behalf of the flower woman. The city law, it was explained, allowed the sale of home-grown flowers by the grower as long as the vendor keeps moving.

U. S. May Investigate Finances of Cutcliffe

Federal investigation of the income of Walter Cutcliffe, alleged banker of a large lottery syndicate, was indicated Tuesday as representatives called at the offices of Solicitor-General John A. Boykin in a search for information.

Cutcliffe was arrested Monday night by city and county officers who reported seizing carbon copies of lottery receipts and other evidence. Federal officers were said to be interested in reports that Cutcliffe, who was released recently from the Atlanta federal prison after a term on a Macon liquor case, had purchased a new home on Club drive for $9,500.

Presentation of the lottery case against Cutcliffe Tuesday was checked to the grand jury session on Friday, it was said.

Kathryn Kelly, Enters Prison Cell, Says George Soon Will Break Out

CINCINNATI, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Kathryn Kelly was brought here from Oklahoma City tonight to begin her imprisonment for her part in the Charles F. Urschel kidnapping. She was met at the train by a large squad of police, armed with machine guns, and immediately started for the Cincinnati workhouse, her future abode.

"I love George Kelly, very, very much," the wife of the outlaw said, "I felt hard towards him for a while, but I understand that now."

Turning defiantly to officers, she said: "George will see me Christmas. He told me he would break out Christmas and get me out. He always does as he says he will."

Although she burst into tears just after parting with her mother, Kathryn was cheerful again as her train pulled away.

"Come up to see me some time," she yelled to photographers, "any time—when you need a good picture."

INGALLS KIMBALL DIES IN NEW YORK

Insurance Man Was Only Son of Pioneer Developer of Atlanta.

Ingalls Kimball, 59, only son of the late H. I. Kimball, pioneer Atlanta developer, died Monday at the Metropolitan sanitarium, Mount McGregor, N. Y., after an illness of several months. He was director of group annuities for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company at New York. Funeral services will be held there today.

Mr. Kimball's father, coming to Atlanta immediately after the War Between the States, built the old H. I. Kimball house, which later was burned, and also the old capitol building at the corner of Marietta and Forsyth streets, a site now occupied by the Western Union building.

After the old Kimball House was burned, the elder Mr. Kimball was made general manager in charge of construction of the present Kimball House by a local corporation of which the late Evan P. Howell, then editor of The Constitution, was president.

The elder Mr. Kimball, one of Atlanta's most active promoters, did a wonderful work in developing public enterprises here soon after the war. He was one of the organizers of the first Cotton States Exposition, held in Atlanta in 1881, the most extensive exposition ever held in the south up to that time. The site of the exposition was bought by the Exposition Cotton Mills or manufacturing plant. Thousands of visitors were drawn from all parts of the country for the exposition.

When first built, the old capitol building was to house a theater and was the largest building south of Baltimore. It was nearly completed when the capitol was moved from Milledgeville to Atlanta, and H. I. Kimball engineered the deal by which the state took over the new building as its capitol, the theater auditorium being remodeled for the house of representatives and the senate being held in an adjoining large room.

The elder Mr. Kimball also engineered the deal in which the state obtained as the governor's mansion the newly-built John H. James mansion on the site now occupied by the Henry Grady hotel. James, selling what was then the most elaborate mansion in Georgia, built another handsome residence for himself on the site now occupied by the Davidson-Paxon store, even more elaborate than the first building. James, a prominent Atlanta banker, was considered as one of the wealthiest men in Georgia in his time.

After the business failure of James, the Capital City Club purchased the new James mansion for its home and occupied the building for many years, later selling the property and building the present clubhouse at the corner of Peachtree and West Harris streets.

Ingalls Kimball and his sisters, Laura and Maude, grew up as children in the old Kimball home at the junction of Peachtree and West Peachtree, looking toward the center of the city. He is survived by his wife, two daughters, and his sisters, Mrs. W. B. Covell, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. George Heil, of Providence, R. I.

U. S. Bridge Experts Will Ignore London's Ban on Ace-Showing Bid

By JAMES H. STREET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Bridge experts here agreed today that there is no chance of American players heeding the fascinating ace-showing in small bidding as the Portland Club in London is reported to have done.

The experts were slightly perturbed but not at all alarmed over an article published in London that the Portland Club—spokesman for British bridge—had forbidden the ace-showing bid.

Ely Culbertson said he had cabled a formal protest to the Portland Club.

"I am astonished," said he heatedly, "at the Portland Club's decision and hope it has been misinterpreted. Since it was issued without concurrence of the Whist Club, joint author with it of the international code."

The bids were devised by Culbertson to promote safe grand slam bidding and take advantage of increased bonuses provided by rules made international last November.

Shepard Barclay was a bit indignant over the report.

Said he: "There's not a chance that America will bar ace-showing."

Walter Beineke, vice president of the Whist Club, said the club had not been informed of the Portland Club's decision.

The latest storm over bridge began brewing recently when English newspapers discussed the ethics and legality of the four and five no-trump conventions. Such bidding, enabled an American team to defeat two British quartets in July.

And the storm broke today when in the bridge column of the London Evening Star published a statement that the Portland Club had barred ace-showing.

The club refused to confirm the statement.

"Messrs. Vanderbilt, Work, Lenz and many respectable English authors in advocating ace-showing bids have been, according to the decision, violating the rules of the game all these years and all their systems and books, as well as my own, must be thrown out," said Culbertson. "Was Portland Club asleep all these years?"

"I am certain that there is not the remotest chance of the ruling being adopted in America. I am equally certain in view of my knowledge of the wonderful sportsmanship of the Britishers that the quicker will be the adoption of this rule in this understanding, the more it will be appreciated by all."

High Court Will Hear Commissioners' Pleas

The supreme court of Georgia today will hear arguments on the appealed certiorari of four of the five members of the suspended Georgia public service commission.

The ousted commissioners followed two courses of action last summer when they were suspended by Governor Eugene Talmadge. They filed quo warranto actions against the men named in their places and also sought to have the court review the governor's action by certiorari.

All lost their cases in the lower courts. The high court heard arguments Monday on the quo warranto actions and today will take up the certiorari appeals. It is expected the cases will be grouped.

The actions docketed are those of J. A. Perry against Chairman J. F. Wilcox, Walter R. McDonald against J. T. Daniel, Jule W. Felton against Ben T. Huie and Albert Woodruff against George Goode. Perry, T. Knight, the fifth member of the suspended commission has taken no action to oust his successor, T. K. Davis.

FLORIDA SHERIFF TO FIGHT FOR JOB

Dan Hardie Ousted at Miami on Charge of Misconduct in Office.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 17.—(UP)—Sheriff Dan Hardie, suspended from office today by Governor Dave Sholtz on charges of misconduct in office, immediately threatened a bitter legal fight to retain his job.

D. C. Coleman, former city manager and chief deputy sheriff in 1928, was named to succeed Hardie at once in the governor's executive order from Tallahassee.

Hardie said his trouble came because "the gamblers want to run this county and I would not allow it."

"I've been the best sheriff in the United States in view of conditions," he added belligerently, "and I've only begun to fight."

Governor Sholtz charged Hardie with incompetency, misfeasance and malfeasance in office and neglect of duty, citing allegations that the sheriff was cognizant of a conspiracy to dynamite a Miami building and to murder two men but failed to arrest the conspirators.

Hardie was expected to demand a hearing offered by Governor Sholtz. Three days after he became sheriff 10 months ago, Hardie assailed conditions prevailing in the county, declaring gangster and grafters were seeking control. Later he said he had refused $240,000 in bribes in two months. He had threatened to seek indictments against officials allegedly allied with the underworld.

RAIL MAGNATE'S CHILD AGAIN UNDER GUARD

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Inquirer says Betty Downes, 15-year-old daughter of a Pennsylvania railroad official, is the object of a renewed campaign by the extortionist who threatened her life two months ago.

As a result the girl's bodyguard has been recalled and armed men are assigned to protect her to and from school in the Chestnut Hill section of the city, the Inquirer says.

Arizona Congresswoman Becomes "Boss" of Taxi

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Isabella Greenway, Arizona's lone representative, today told the National Women's Press Club how she happened to become proprietor of a taxicab for two weeks.

"I have no car here," said Mrs. Greenway. "I was having to take taxis here and there until it seemed I might as well own one."

"So I leased one for two weeks—something that has been a dream of mine all my life—just to see the meter ticking on into eternity. You see, I wanted to prove there could be such a thing as controlled inflation."

Smoky Park Gains Largest Attendance

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Great Smoky Mountains National park, in North Carolina and Tennessee, was visited by more persons this year than any other national park, although it is one of the most recently established.

The office of national parks, buildings and reservations estimated today that 375,000 visitors entered the Great Smokies during 1933 compared with 300,000 in 1932.

Yosemite National park, long a leading attraction for tourists, was visited by 296,088 persons, compared with 498,280 a year ago.

This large decrease was attributed to correction of unavoidable double-counting in previous years.

The park office estimated 100,000 automobiles entered the Great Smoky Mountains National park this year, compared with 85,000 in 1932.

Alabama Coal Strike Is Reported Settled

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Senator Wagner, chairman of the national labor board, reported today that Elmer F. Andrews, New York commissioner of labor, had succeeded in settling the Alabama coal strike.

Agreement of the West Kentucky Coal Company to permit its miners to decide by ballot whether they preferred to affiliate with the United Mine Workers of America or a company union also was announced by the national labor board.

Andrews represented the national labor board in the Alabama negotiations.

Wagner said that arrangements for collective bargaining had been completed and 2,000 miners at ten plants had returned to work in Alabama.

Reviewing the Shows

Accordianist Fontana

Playing at Buckhead
Fontana, nationally known accordianist, who has played in the country, as a featured performer in big time vaudeville, will appear today and for the balance of the week at Buckhead theater.

Fontana is not a mere performer of stunts, but is a genuine musician whose mastery of his instrument enables him to play all kinds of music and to give to every number that effectiveness which is rarely reached by a soloist. He will play at both afternoon and night performances at the Buckhead all this week. The feature picture at this popular suburban house today is "Trick for Trick" with Ralph Morgan, Victor Jory and Sally Blane.

Matinee at Erlanger

By Peruchians Today
Rel Terry and Lance Davis, new leading woman and leading man, respectively, with the Peruchi Players, will make their first appearance before an Erlanger matinee audience this afternoon. The production by the popular stock company this week is "Tolly With a Past," and both the new players have scored outstanding personal successes by their work in the lead roles.

The matinee starts at 2:15 and, inasmuch as seats are not reserved for these bargain-priced afternoon performances, it is advisable to be at the theater early, if you wish any special seat location.

Embs and Alton, a well known vaudeville team, are adding to the enjoyment of the performances this week with their harmonizing from the orchestra pit between acts, while the Erlanger orchestra also provides entertainment with their playing of "The Last Round-Up," "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf?" and other recent hits.

There will be the usual night performance at 8:15 in addition to the matinee today.

New Film at Georgia

Is 'Best of Enemies'
Buddy Rogers and Marion Nixon have the leading roles in the picture, "Best of Enemies," which has its Atlanta premier showing at the Georgia theater today. In home and treatment, it is a film that has a timely significance. The story details a romance between two youngsters whose personal lives are intricately bound up with passing events. Their bringing up, their daily lives, belong as they do to a familiar class of Americans, gives rise to a number of barriers that must be overcome.

Buddy Rogers, absent from the motion picture screen for many months, heretofore makes his return. With the training he has received in a year of personal appearances throughout the country, Rogers has garnered enough experience to present himself as a new type of screen performer. Marion Nixon, in the leading feminine role, climaxes a year of important screen parts with this film.

The cast in support is headed by the veterans, Frank Morgan, Joseph Cawthorn, Greta Nissen and many others. Added units on the same program includes a Harry Langdon comedy, "Bosco the Pup" cartoon and a new issue of Paramount sound news.

The long-awaited film, "The Love of Honor and Oh, Baby," starring Slim Summerville and ZaSu Pitts, arrives at the Georgia for a week's engagement starting next Saturday. No advance in prices will be made.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The serious illness of Mrs. Hazel Chaney, widow of Lon Chaney, has resulted in an indefinite postponement of her marriage to the late actor's most trusted companion, John Joskie. Mrs. Chaney is confined to a hospital as the result of an illness from which she had been suffering for months. Her condition only recently became critical.

Man's Best Food Is MILK!

Milk in its NATURAL form is the oldest, best and healthiest food for human consumption. More than that, it is the cheapest food we may buy. It is not only best, but is essential in the diet of grown-ups and children alike.

It seems strange, therefore, that the average daily consumption of milk in Atlanta is less than one pint per family. However, many housewives are fast realizing the vital place of PURE MILK in the diet of their families, and are accordingly doubling their orders.

Children, normal and healthy, like and crave good, rich, pure milk, and nothing you could give them could be of greater benefit. Serve it at meal time, between meals and in cooked foods. Be sure they may obtain a bottle of NATURAL milk at school for lunch. In the homes where you find the healthiest, happiest and brightest children you'll find, always, an abundance of Good GRADE A RAW MILK in the ice box.

Are you guarding the health and growth of your child by providing plenty of Good GRADE A RAW MILK at all times?

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By Pierre Van Paassen

Nippo the Go-Getter

Japan has just found a new market for its products and an outlet for its surplus population in the most unexpected corner of the earth that can be imagined: Abyssinia. Abyssinia is the last African empire that retains its independence. It is a land of amazing fertility, sparsely populated and by a people that is fundamentally very intelligent. Its ruler, Ras Tafari, is a modern man, who would, if he had the means, transform his country into a twentieth-century state.

For years Tafari has been dicker-ing and negotiating with Italian and British, Belgian and German consuls over the question of the construction of up-to-date railways. Those negotiations came to nothing. But now we learn that Japan is interested and the railways are going to be built. Sixteen million acres of the finest land have been set aside in Abyssinia for Japanese colonization. The Japanese have also managed to get the poppy monopoly for the manufacture of opium.

It is a tremendous economic victory. Naturally Italy, Britain and France are not pleased about it. Some years ago there was a secret agreement between those powers to divide up Abyssinia, on the pretext that Ras Tafari could not maintain order in his kingdom. But that emperor frustrated those knavish tricks by notifying the League of Nations of the sinister design. He put the powers in an unfavorable position with his revelations. At present an organization is being formed in Japan to direct a hundred thousand Japanese to migrate to Abyssinia. Japanese shops are going to be opened all over Ethiopia, and several official Japanese missions are at present touring the country and studying the situation with a view to extending Japanese participation in the commercial and industrial expansion of the African empire. Japan has taken up with it to Japanese business acumen and initiative.

FOR UNIFORM MOTOR LAWS

The lack of material achievement of the efforts which have so far been made towards securing greater uniformity and standardization of state motor vehicle laws is deplored in a statement by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the federal bureau of public roads.

The problem is of such a nature, Mr. MacDonald points out, that its solution must be sought by cooperative effort among the states, rather than by federal fiat, and he expresses the hope that the conference to be held at Harrisburg, Pa., Friday and Saturday of this week, with representatives from 17 states participating, will give impetus to the movement in every state in the Union.

All of the New England states, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois will take part in the conference, the announced purpose being "to consider the desirability of framing reciprocal and uniform laws and regulations relating to the sizes and weights of commercial vehicles."

Representative Peters, of Pennsylvania, in an article in the current issue of State Government, official organ of the American Legislators' Association, cites the many variations in state laws which are the source of almost constant friction. Some states permit the operation on their highways of motor vehicles 14 feet tall, while others limit the height to 12 feet. Similar differences exist in regard to length and weight.

Representative Peters comments that—

The need for some concrete suggestions in the way of uniformity can be seen in the strangeness and diversity of state regulations. Drastic statutes like those which have been enacted in Texas, Kansas and Kentucky may go so far as literally to regulate trucks of the road. Not only have state supreme courts upheld these laws, but when the Ohio public utilities commission ruled trucks of certain congested arteries of travel, this ruling was upheld by the United States supreme court on the grounds that it was not a violation of constitutional rights for a state to exercise control over its highway traffic.

The few instances given in this article merely hint at the divergence of opinion as of regulation which exist at present in our 49 different codes. But they are a warning of what will certainly continue in the way of discriminatory and chaotic legislation if the northeastern conference fails in conciliation and foresight.

The increasing frequency of clashes between states caused by the lack of uniform regulatory statutes will cause the deliberations at Harrisburg to be carefully studied in all parts of the country.

If the conference is successful in achieving the objectives for which it has been called, similar parleys should be held in every section, or the individual states should unitedly follow such recommendations as may be made by the Harrisburg conference, modifying them to such extent as may be necessary to meet local conditions.

A dynamic character is usually a live wire.

A popular home pastime should be remaining there sometimes.

Many have an aim in life, but try to hit the target with a popgun.

Many people are assisted in getting up in the world by an alarm clock.

The weakest thing about our jury system is some of the men selected for duty.

Wisconsin has placed their idle in school. Such a threat will make many boys go to work.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

INSIDE POLITICS WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The way general Jim Farley is putting it over on honest Harold Ickes in their patronage struggle has all insiders tittering behind their hands.

They admonish their friends to tell no one about it, least of all Ickes. But he has already begun to smell a mouse. Apparently Mr. Ickes thought he had subdued Farley when he put handouts on Emil Hurja, the Farley man Friday in the public works set-up. Ickes gave Hurja an obscure office and told him to keep out of the way.

Ickes then entrusted patronage to his executive assistant, Ebert K. Burlew. That hurt Mr. Farley's feelings. As far as he was concerned, Ickes might as well have chosen Herbert Hoover to dispense patronage. Burlew is a holdover from the Hoover regime.

THE SCHEME Mr. Hurja was hurt, too. He became meek and apologetic. He was just a big misunderstood man. All he wanted to do was to play around a little with patronage even if he could not be important.

So finally a scheme whereby he could draw up a list of political eligibles for appointments. He had files, files and files showing how hard each voter worked for Mr. Roosevelt. He had records containing the political and moral genealogy of every job-seeker.

It was agreed Burlew would call on Hurja whenever a job was open, Hurja would submit 10 or 15 names of eligibles with their records. Burlew would then make the selection.

THE TRICK Harless Emil went about that business with a shrewdness which deserved reward. He knew the man he wanted for each job. The problem was to put his selection over on Burlew.

The records helped. One man in the list always was made out to be an angel. The others were always villains.

But this system was hazardous because Burlew occasionally chose the villains. Hurja fixed that by submitting only one name two or three days before an appointment was to be made. Then he would become entangled in his records until the last moment.

When Burlew called on him for other names, Hurja would offer a half dozen inconsequential ones if he offered any at all.

The result is that, unbeknown to Ickes, the genial Jim has installed nine of every ten men appointed in the public works set-up.

REPUBLICANS The wounded Mr. Hurja was just as efficient when it came time to select a republican on the Deposit Insurance Corporation. Mr. Hurja knows what kind of republicans he wants in office, as well as democrats.

A certain republican authority submitted to him a list of several men from which to choose. Hurja was sorry, he already had a list of his own. Furthermore, the list submitted by the republican did not have the records of the men on it. Nothing could be done until each name on the republican list was accompanied by the man's record for ten years back.

By the time this was done, the appointment was made. Mr. Hurja was sorry but the appointment had to be made from his list because the other list isn't ready.

SCIENCE These facts illustrate the inside on the patronage situation. Namely, that Mr. Farley is doing quite well, for himself, thank you, but is compelled to work for what he gets. Instead of being the grand marshal of patronage, he is only the postmaster-general.

His man Hurja has reduced the matter to a science. In Hurja's desk are charts, blue prints, maps and statistics. They show what congressional districts must be kept in mind for the elections next year. Also which senators need caressing and which localities have a republican tinge. And all his statistics go back as far as the Civil War.

Some congressmen complain there is too much science in it and too few jobs. They are not getting many appointments for marshals, district attorneys, postmasters. They all want to know when the bars are going to be let down and the plums passed around generally.

No one can tell them, not even Farley or Hurja. They say the bars may never be down.

They must plot along as they are, harassed by idealists who do not realize that elections still are being held in this country.

UNKNOWN The postoffice department, which is proud of its efficiency, will groan when it finds that it designated one of Mr. Farley's and Mr. Roosevelt's closest friends, and an official here, as unknown in Washington.

The friend is Frank Walker, head of Mr. Roosevelt's central statistical board in the commerce department. A letter was addressed to him recently by Harlan Honk, Lamoni, Iowa.

Several days later the letter came back to Honk with the following inscriptions on the envelope: "Not in public works," "Not at 5327 Sixteenth street," "Not 1486 Meridian place," "Address unknown."

NOTES Congressmen frothed when Ickes recently called on the deans of law schools out in the country to nominate several young lawyers in each state for public works jobs. Their frothing was in vain.

The insiders now call Hurja "Farley's master mind" and he rates that title. The reason Hurja did not get the ambassadorship to Finland was that Farley needed him here and talked him out of the easy diplomatic post.

They Are Pious People If the Circus Gets No Crowd on Prayer Meeting Night

By Robert Quillen

The one unflinching evidence of public approval is the box office. The success of a play, a book, a magazine, a motion picture or a baking powder is conclusive proof that it pleases current public taste.

As this is true today, so it must always have been true, for human nature hasn't changed.

A study of court records in the time of Shakespeare provides evidence that the common people and their betters behaved and talked as the characters do in Shakespeare's plays.

Perhaps that isn't surprising, but here is a point commonly overlooked. Familiarity with Shakespeare's plays is now classed as culture. One who reads them for pleasure is called a "high-brow." They are taught in the schools. And it is conceded that one must be above the average to comprehend and appreciate the wit and wisdom and philosophy that make the plays immortal.

But the plays that win popular favor now are another kind. They are adjusted to the taste and mentality of the present generation. They reflect our times. They are what they are because we are what we are.

Do you realize what that signifies? It means that Shakespeare's plays, now called "high-brow," were adjusted to the minds and morals of their time. They were understood and appreciated by the common people who paid to see and hear them.

Consider another period. America's Emerson was the most popular writer of his time. His beautiful phrases and crystal-clear reasoning and wisdom-packed epigrams made him a universal favorite because the people of his day enjoyed such writing.

Now his essays are considered "high-brow." Henry Ford once confessed that he read them with a dictionary at his elbow. Most people think them too deep and read them as a duty or not at all.

We boast of our learning and feel superior to the old-fashioned people of other eras, but our level of intelligence is not above the plays and books that our folk makes successful.

FALL FROM BUS FATAL
TO CHARLES J. BRANANDecatur Resident Suffered
Fractured Skull in Stepping
From Moving Vehicle.

Charles J. Branan, 56, formerly of McDonough, and a widely known resident of Henry county for many years, died early Tuesday at a private hospital here from injuries suffered late Monday when he stepped from a moving bus on the Macon highway near McDonough.

Mr. Branan, who recently established his residence at 540 Oakview road, Decatur, was on the way to McDonough on business. A hard rain was falling when he decided to leave the bus at a lighted filling station about two miles north of the city, near his old home. The driver was not able to stop in time and Mr. Branan, in alighting, slipped and fell backward. His skull was fractured.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at Salem Baptist church, near McDonough. The Rev. A. B. Couch and the Rev. Gordon L. Brooks will officiate and interment will be in the churchyard. Mr. Branan's brothers will be pallbearers. The funeral party will leave Spring Hill at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

Surviving Mr. Branan are his wife; two daughters, Miss Sarah and Clyde Branan; three sons, Ernest, William and Fred Branan; three sisters, Miss Mary Branan, of Savannah; Miss Kate Branan, of Atlanta, and Mrs. C. M. Craig, of McDonough; and six brothers, John S. J. W., E. C., J. D., R. D. and Roy Branan, all of McDonough.

CHATTANOOGA UNIT
ACQUIRED BY LANE

Announcement of the opening of another Lane unit in Chattanooga was made Tuesday by H. C. Naylor, president of the Lane Drug Stores. "The first six weeks' operation of the first Chattanooga unit was so successful that we have been encouraged to expand further in the Chattanooga field," he said. "We are pleased to announce the acquisition of Sanders Pharmacy, Bert P. Sanders, former owner, on Monday last."

"This is an old established store in the Ridgeville section serving an exclusive clientele. We feel that it is one of the best suburban locations in Chattanooga."

Mr. Naylor stated that he expected to announce additional new units in the Lane group in the near future.

RAILROADS SUPPORT
SCHOOLS—POLLARD

That 37 per cent of the tax payments of the steam railroads of Georgia go for school maintenance, with an even higher percentage in Alabama, is the assertion of H. D. Pollard, president of the Central railroad, in a statement published today. "The railroads of the United States pay annually $148,000,000 in school taxes," Mr. Pollard added.

"Few realize the extent to which the schools depend upon railway tax payments for their support," he said. "In many school districts the railroads pay more than all other citizens combined to sustain the schools. This year, in numerous instances, school authorities have advised the Central of Georgia railway that unless the railroad's taxes were paid, the schools could not open."

"In Georgia the railroads pay as county taxes alone about $2,500,000, of which nearly $1,000,000 is allocated for school purposes. If the public schools are to continue to function they must continue to receive adequate revenues."

Alkali Water Hails
Britain's Best Train

PUEBLO, Colo., Oct. 17.—(AP)—The "Royal Scot" couldn't take it! Britain's most famous train was towed into Pueblo five hours late today.

Known abroad as the train that is never late, the Royal Scot's engine developed trouble near Eads, Colo., and had to be towed here by a Missouri Pacific engine.

Those in charge of the train said alkali water placed in the locomotive in Kansas and the kind of coal which was used had been the cause of the locomotive's trouble.

They said the front end of the engine became stopped up, the firebox was clogged with clinkers and the flue sprang leaks.

C.C.C. CAMP REFUSES
PAY FOR SERVICE
FROM NON-NRA MILL

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 17.—(AP)—The commanding officer of a civilian conservation camp No. P-56, near Monck's Corner, was revealed today to have refused to pay telephone and power service bills because the plant supplying them is not operating under NRA regulations.

The action came to light here with issuance of an order by Federal Judge J. Lyles Glenn to Ernest L. Visanska, as receiver for the Berkeley Barrel and Basket Factory to cease supplying service.

Visanska in petitioning for the order said that in the receivership's proposal to furnish power and telephone service was brought out that due to lack of judicial authority and to the economic condition of the receivership the plant could not operate under the provisions of the recovery act.

Following is the committee: Mark A. Stephenson, Decatur, chairman; Roy Cooper, Augusta; E. D. Thompson, Savannah; H. S. Wootton, Milledgeville; J. P. Kelley, Valdosta; Frank Stapleton, Americus; J. L. Storey, Rome; Howard Gordon, Danielville; John Houston, Lawrenceville; and Paul Ridgeway, Toccoa.

EAST SIDE TABERNACLE TO HAVE REV. ALBERT

The Rev. W. M. Albert has accepted a call to the East Side Tabernacle, located at the corner of Flat Shoals avenue and Gibson street. Mr. Albert was pastor of this church from 1919 to 1929, when he resigned to accept a call from the Western Heights Baptist church.

Mr. Albert was ordained at the East Side church in 1915, and in his three years there 300 members were added to the church. He has preached at revivals in Georgia, Tennessee and Alabama and has been very successful as an evangelist, it was said. Services will be held at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. every Sunday.

LUCAS AND M'INTOSH
DROP CONTROL POSTS

Arthur Lucas, of Atlanta, and Henry T. McIntosh, of Albany, whose resignations from the state board of control Monday were made effective by Governor Eugene Talmadge despite the fact that both had fixed the dates they would end their service as November 1, Tuesday made it known that they would not contest the governor's action.

No formal announcement came from either Mr. Lucas or Mr. McIntosh, but close friends of both said they would let the matter drop. The governor appointed Mrs. William T. Healey, of Atlanta, to succeed Mr. Lucas, and is expected to name a successor to Mr. McIntosh in a few days.

JURY INDICTS LAWYER FOR THEFT OF AUTOS

Indicted by the Fulton county grand jury in connection with the alleged theft of three automobiles, Vester M. Ownby, Atlanta attorney, Tuesday was the object of a search by deputies. The attorney was charged with drawing bills of sale and otherwise aiding in the disposition of stolen cars.

In two indictments Ownby was named jointly with Sam Echols and in a third bill was indicted jointly with Echols and A. B. Reeves. The machines were alleged to have been stolen from the Dixie Drug-De-Lux Company, from A. B. Dennis, 1027 Kentucky avenue, and D. M. Swords, 1087 Hudson drive.

DEKALB TO MAP PLANS FOR CHARITY CAMPAIGN

Plans for the 1933 Red Cross-Community Chest drive in DeKalb county will be launched at the first public meeting of the field forces at 7:45 o'clock Thursday night, at the DeKalb county courthouse in Decatur. Claude H. Blount, chairman of the Red Cross chapter in the county announced Tuesday. He said Charles D. McKinney, of Decatur, will serve as chairman of the joint campaign. George F. Everett, of Decatur, was named chairman of the speakers' bureau and will attempt to have speakers appearing before schools, churches and civic organizations. Included in the many short talks outlined in the plans will be one by the Rev. Charles Holding, rector of the Decatur Episcopal church.

CHINESE REBEL CHIEFS
PLACED UNDER ARREST

PEIPING, China, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Two of China's rebel generals were dramatically arrested today as a result of activities which threatened Sino-Japanese peace in north China last month.

The generals, Feng Chen-wu and Chin Hung-chang, deserted their armies northwest of Peiping and, disguised as peasants, attempted to pass the government patrols on the way to Peiping.

The latter was recognized, however, and both outlaws were arrested and slated for trial in Peiping.

U. S. Resorts Described
As German Spa's Equals

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The American League for the Defense of Jewish Rights today announced the distribution of a pamphlet to physicians listing 11 American health resorts "whose facilities and medicinal value are the equal of the German spas."

The resorts mentioned include Blue Lick Springs, Ky.; French Lick, Ind.; Hot Springs, Ark.; Hot Springs, Va.; Saratoga Springs, N. Y.; and Sweet Springs, Pa. The pamphlet also listed 32 resorts in foreign countries other than Germany.

Further listed in the pamphlet were American and British equivalents of 52 German-made drugs.

In Georgia's Fields and Streams

By H. A. CARTER

MEASUREMENTS.

"Total length, 90 millimeters; tail, 48 millimeters; width of head in body—." And so on, seemingly ad infinitum, measurement follows measurement. Salamander follows salamander from jar to jar and to shipping container. Figures take their place in definite columns on the tabulation pad as my wife records the numbers that I drone as I work. Calipers and millimeter scale are working overtime, but they will soon have their long-earned rest while winter collecting gets under way.

I have had a number of people tell me that I lead a most enviable life. The general idea seems to prevail that I spend all my time strolling through the fields and along the meandering streams, picking up an occasional specimen, and in general enjoying the scenery. In so far as actual collecting work is concerned, this idea is in part correct; in part only, for the capture of 145 specimens in three hours, which is about average in a good locality, leaves no time for more than cursory glances at landscapes. In a locality that is not rich in specimens, which also means that specimens are more important from such places, the work is more strenuous yet. And after the specimens are in hand there is still 90 per cent of the work to be done.

Measurements must be made to tell us something of growth rate and similar things that mean so much to scientists. Species must be determined as accurately as it is possible to make the critical determinations. Localities must be charted and distribution maps prepared. Environment preferences must be stated, particularly as to moisture, soil and flow of stream in the case under consideration. And after these and other similar factors in the final equation are determined, what will be the answer?

We will be able to set down our findings in this fashion:

"In the genus Desmognathus, there is a relatively narrow range of environmental preferences shown. D.

fusus seems to frequent less moist regions than does D. ochrophaeus, although both are evidently less aquatic than the larger D. quadrimaculata. This latter species is apparently the most aquatic of the genus found in Georgia, never being found far from water, and usually in very wet situations. It is also true that D. quadrimaculata is more abundant in well aerated mountain streams than in streams carrying less oxygen in solution."

Do you notice the predominance of qualifying phrases? They are necessary to scientific reports of this nature. We cannot be dogmatic for fear of obscuring the actual status of problems that need work with a mass of verbiage indicating a final statement.

CLUB WILL PRESENT
PLAY FRIDAY NIGHT

Georgia and Duke Carry Burden for Southern Football

Georgia's football team, along with that of Duke, has a very excellent opportunity to save the football situation for southern teams this fall.

Because present indications are that competition is so well balanced among the leading teams that there will not be an outstanding, undefeated team—unless it is Georgia or Duke.

Southern football, because of this balance in competitive power, will not look as strong this fall as it has in the past several seasons. Georgia's chances appear best but there are a number of opportunities for defeat.

Because of the fact that Wallace Wade is the fair-haired boy in so far as the Rose Bowl football committee is concerned, his Duke team is already "in" provided it comes through. A rather difficult assignment.

The Rose Bowl picture, before the season begins, is not an inspiring one. In the south Georgia seems to be out because of a previously scheduled game with Southern California.

Auburn was a possibility until defeated by Georgia Tech.

Tennessee was removed by Duke.

L. S. U. is likely out because of the tie with Centenary.

All this and the season barely under way.

In the east Pittsburgh is likely out because of the appearance in last year's game. Or rather in the January 1 game of this year.

Colgate isn't impressive and the same goes for other eastern leaders.

In the midwest Ohio State and Michigan appear strongest but the Big Ten rule prevents any post-season appearance.

It's Duke—if the Blue Devils can parade on through a rather rugged southern schedule.

MOURNING THE COMMODORES.

Bill Warwick, who was an alternate center on the Vanderbilt Commodores from 1927 through the 1930 season, sat down in the office, removed his crying towel from his hip pocket and had himself a good cry.

"I saw them beat Cumberland and tie Oklahoma at Norman and win from North Carolina," he said, referring to those Commodores, "and they haven't got it. There are high school teams in Tennessee that can beat Cumberland. For that matter," he said, "how could one expect Vanderbilt, with nine sophomores and two juniors in the lineup, to have very much."

"They haven't any offense. They made 48 yards and one first down against Oklahoma and 50 yards and a couple of first downs against Ohio State. They had trouble scoring three touchdowns against North Carolina and North Carolina is one of the poorest football teams in action this year."

"The Vanderbilt alumni, of which I am one," said Warwick, "are still living in the days when Sewanee and Vanderbilt were the only two teams playing real football in the south. Dan McGugin lost one game and was tied twice in 1932 which seems to me to be a good record. But those people up there want championships and can't understand why anyone else can win one."

"Ohio State and Oklahoma commented on the fact that Vanderbilt's plays were very deceptive and offered something new, yet the wolves are saying that Vanderbilt is behind the times in football. They are behind in football material but not in plays."

"If Randall Dixon gets back after that broken arm he will help out. He kicked them out of trouble every time Oklahoma threatened. If the Sooners had not fumbled so much they would have beaten Vanderbilt three touchdowns. But they'd fumble and Dixon would kick it out. I notice they rot a 19-yard punt from behind their own line in the Ohio State game. And that didn't help."

"No, sir," he said, weeping afresh, "they just haven't got it. Nine sophomores and two juniors. How could they have it?"

And so, there was nothing else to do but call the janitor and have Mr. Warwick thrown out. He was breaking the hearts of all who heard him.

But he is probably right about the Commodores. Any team which has a difficult time with the 1933 Tarheels will go nowhere in the football struggle.

FOOTBALL INJURIES.

There was a professional football game at Ponce de Leon park last Sunday; a sort of sandlot-pro game played by boys who hadn't trained for it and who had inadequate equipment to begin with.

All of which reminds me that there have been 14 deaths from "football" this fall and that not one has come from the ranks of a college varsity eleven.

The great majority of them came from the sort of "professional" game which was played here Sunday. The others, with two exceptions, were from small high schools where the supervision was inadequate and capable medical supervision not available at the time of the accident.

But "scrubbed-up" or "sandlot" games such as the one of Sunday contribute the most injuries.

Most of the players were ex-college players who had been out of the game from three to five years. They had not trained for the game. They borrowed equipment with which to play. Many of them kept playing after they were exhausted. If they are to continue they owe it to the game to get in shape and train for their games.

Had an accident resulted fatally or had a leg or spine been broken it would have gone down in the books as "a football injury."

The real professional leagues, represented in the east, learned long ago that they must have training periods and must supply equipment and medical attention.

The players who work week days and play a football game on Sunday are taking an unnecessary risk and are more than likely to add another fatality or injury to the debit side of "football."

Colleges and first-class high schools will have their accidents now and then because football is essentially a game of bodily contact. But they will be reduced to a minimum. None of the present 14 deaths is listed from a college varsity team. Yet the college and established professional games must bear all the ill-will aroused by accidents from so-called football games.

Thomasville Plays Tifton Team Friday

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Oct. 17.—The Thomasville High school Bulldogs are preparing to meet one of the strongest of their conference foes on Friday of this week, when they go to Tifton to battle the Blue Devils, who lived up to advance notices of last week and defeated the strong Montrie Packers, 9-6 and established at perhaps the outstanding grid forces of south Georgia for this season.

Coach Harper is putting his boys through plenty of training during the week in anticipation of the crucial game this week-end, and while the locals are none too optimistic over their chances of victory they are determined to put up a stiff fight every minute they are in the game.

GRIDIRON GIANTS TO SEE LIGHT THIS SATURDAY

Princeton, Harvard, Yale and Others To Face Severe Tests.

By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Many of the gridiron's big boys may know the worst by the end of this week.

The set-up for Saturday's major football games is such as to provide an extraordinary early season test of championship aspirations, especially in the east, the Big Six and the Big Ten. The ranks of the unbeaten should be substantially depleted by the time the tumult and the shouting dies down.

The answer to what Princeton's Tiger is growing about, for instance, should be furnished by a well-drilled set of young men from Columbia, featuring Cliff Montgomery, one of the best all-around backs in the east. The news may be bad—for either side.

Simultaneously Harvard and Yale appear genuinely apprehensive over what their New England rivals, Holy Cross and Brown, will do to them. They should be.

In the middle west the twin scoring powerhouses of the Big Ten, Ohio State and Michigan, will crash together at Ann Arbor in one of those "even-money-and-take-your-pick" affairs. The Wolverines have a two-touchdown edge last year but been had by Harry Newman, too, and the Buckeyes refuse to concede anything in advance on the record so far this fall.

BIG SIX STRUGGLE.

Manhattan—Kansas, not New York—will be the scene of a struggle for Big Six leadership between Nebraska and Kansas State. It's an old country custom to pick the Cornhuskers but this is another affair that cannot be settled by conversation before-hand.

The conviction is spreading among the major colleges, especially in the east, that the come-back of the cash customers only can be stimulated by giving them their money's worth; in other words, by arranging schedules so that there is competition and natural rivalry from start to finish.

The set-up or "breather" type of football game is rapidly disappearing. In some sections, notably on the west coast and the middle west, it has been tossed out altogether. Southern California drew more paying customers for last week's battle with St. Mary's in the former Olympic stadium at Los Angeles than several big eastern schools will attract during the entire month of October.

STAY IN CLASS.

"The answer," remarked an eastern gridiron manager, "is to rearrange our whole schedules on the basis of sticking to our class. Some exceptions are desirable, but the old idea of prepping for three or four big clinch games in November is a species of financial suicide nowadays. Before long you will see the final development of a so-called eastern conference consisting of eight or perhaps ten of the leading colleges, all playing interlocking schedules."

While it is not necessarily revolutionary, Eddie Casey, of Harvard, has changed the Crimson's basic lineal formations this season to the closed style, featuring spinners, instead of the old punt formation. Yale and Princeton have long since followed their whole football structure to meet the demands of the modern developments in tactics and strategy.

Before Dick Kante Rockne joked about using a double spinner, from which a variety of plays spread, but it has become a serious feature of offensive play now, in the Notre Dame as well as in the Warner systems. Jimmy Crowley, who did little, if any, spinning himself while riding with the Four Horsemen, now has Referee Jim Brennan sent down triple spinners.

GO F FACTS NOT THEORIES

ALEX. J. MORRISON

Central Press Association

IT'S BETTER TO HAVE THE BALL FLY TOO HIGH THAN TOO LOW.

Alex Morrison says:

When your ball flies lower than it should for whatever club you are using, it's a sign that you are not swinging the club correctly.

Your body action is not free and easy. Most likely your wrist has tightened up. Most low flying shots are half missed.

Be sure that your wrists and forearms are free from tension before you start your swing and you'll get the ball up higher.

Popping the ball up in the air is another way of missing the shot, but this should not be considered as sending the ball too high.

So that you have plenty of loft in all your shots and you'll soon get plenty of distance.

PREPS OBSERVE LIGHT DRILLS

Boys' High and Tech High football teams held light workouts Tuesday and will follow with the roughest of the week today as they prepare for Friday and Saturday night games at Ponce de Leon park.

Boys' High plays G. M. A., veteran city opponent, in another round of city championship series, Friday night, while Tech High resumes relations with an old foe, Lanier High, of Macon, Saturday night.

Meanwhile members of the North Georgia Intercollegiate conference will buckle down to some hard work in preparation for Friday games, away from home for the most part.

The Purple backfield, held scoreless against Gordon Institute, two weeks ago, rallied with a fine assortment of plays to beat a strong Central High of Chattanooga, last week. J. Carlisle Smith's excellent passing and punting also played a very important part in the victory.

PURPLE FAVORED.

Boys' High, with another of its best lines and a backfield that is fast, developing into one of the leaders in the state, should not be extended to win over the Cadets. Only 21 points were scored against Boys' High last year and this far no team has crossed the Purple's goal this season. In fact none of their opponents have penetrated scoring territory with any degree of satisfaction.

Bulldogs Hold World Scrimmage Record for Mercer Game

FIRST, SECOND TEAMS IMPRESS COACH MEHRE

Wagon and Batchelor Are Held Out of Rough Work.

By Al Smith.
ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 17.—Harry Mehre's Georgia Bulldogs, who took North Carolina into camp to the tune of 30-0 last Saturday, showed no bad after-effects of the game as they scrimmaged lustily today in preparation for Friday's battle with Mercer in Macon.

The Bulldogs went through an excellent scrimmage. Offensively and defensively they looked good. Although there were one or two occasions when the Red Devils, running Mercer plays, completely baffled the varsity boys.

TWO TEAMS.
Two teams were used. There was the first team, which looked very nice in there. Hugh O'Farrell, who did nicely at end Saturday, was at right end. Henry Wagon, the sophomore end, was not scrimmaging because of a bruised shoulder, while Captain Graham Batchelor, although in uniform and apparently quite active, did not scrimmage. John West, the junior, was at tackle, along with Charlie Opper. West did good work against the Tarheels.

Tom Perkins was center on the second team, to which Coach Mehre devoted a great deal of attention this afternoon. Bull Cooper and Frank Johnson were the guards, with Sandy Gunnels and Allan Shi at tackle, although Jesse Morgan came in a bit later. Dick Maxwell and Charles Jacobson were the ends. The backfield was composed of Leroy Young, quarterback; John Bond and Al Mott, halfbacks, and Phil David, fullback, with Joe Crouch relieving him.

DRILLS SECOND.
The second team played the most consistent game of the two teams. Coach Mehre used against North Carolina. He worked his shock troops harder this afternoon than he did the regulars. A good second team is very handy to have around, especially if you have a schedule like Georgia's.

John McKnight, sophomore center, and John Brown, regular guard, did not scrimmage today on account of bruised shoulders suffered Saturday. They should be ready to go Friday.

Yank Ludwig, veteran center, who was out all last week, scrimmaged today with the regulars. The remainder of the Bulldog squad appeared in fine condition.

L. S. U. DRILLS.
BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Louisiana State University practiced on Arkansas plays today in preparation for the Saturday game with the powerful Razorback eleven. The freshmen used Parker formations against the varsity. Captain "Biff" Jones is trying to build a defense capable of withstanding assaults of the brilliant Ralph LaForge and his teammates.

THE PORTLIGHT

By Krawtaw-Rise

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 17.—Looking over an afternoon's workout at S. M. U., it was interesting to see how many good forward passers and pass receivers Coach Ray Morrison has on his squad.

It seemed as if every member of the squad could nail his target 30 yards away. And apparently every member of the squad could handle a pass.

As related before, Morrison has had to spend a good part of his time on defense so far, with a young team to build up. But he will have the stuff when it gets more experience.

The hairy Texas air seemed to be a rifle or replete with flying footballs all afternoon. Later on it will take a good pass defense to stop this Mustang attack. Morrison not only knows how to teach the art of passing, but he also has a bewildering variety of passing plays.

The outstanding teams in the Southwest conference at this time appear to be Texas A. & M., Southern Methodist and University of Arkansas, in the order listed.

Arkansas has slightly the best record to date, with a chance at the championship, but was none too strong against Baylor, winning on Baylor's mistakes in the last quarter. The Aggies looked good beating Tulane and have a favorable schedule.

Southern Methodist's upset loss to North Texas Teachers, in the opener, meant nothing. The team looked better losing than any first-year S. M. U. team has in years. It has more all-around ammunition than any eleven Morrison ever coached, even though made up mostly of sophomores, and had great reserve strength.

The race is pretty well balanced this year and every team expects to be much stronger in 1934 when most of the play important intercollegiate games—S. M. U. at Fordham, Texas at Notre Dame, etc. Morrison should have his greatest team in history in 1934.

Centenary, which has been undefeated two years and lost only one game by one point in the last five, again has one of the finest teams in the southwest. Centenary plays five Southwest conference teams and will beat most of them. It was tied by a very good S. U. team last week, but has considerable weight advantage and a big edge playing under those Baton Rouge lights.

1,205 PLACES OPEN FOR GEORGIA C.C.C.

Replacement of Discharged Members Will Be Started Immediately.

Replacement of discharged junior veteran civilian conservation corps members in eight southern states will begin immediately, with 50 per cent of the replacements being sent to army posts now and the remainder within two weeks, Major Charles T. Senay, army recruiting officer, announced Tuesday.

Georgia has openings for 1,135 junior replacements and 70 veterans, including 1,062 white juniors and 73 colored, and 58 white veterans and 12 colored veterans, Major Senay said. These members represent the difference between the men who elected to stay in for the second period and the state's quota.

Junior applicants from Georgia must apply through the old county boards, which had charge of the first C. C. C. enrollments, and veterans must apply through John M. Stinson, regional director of the veterans' administration, it was announced Tuesday.

The old county boards have been inactive since the first enrollment, but will supervise the new enlistments, according to plans.

Fulton county applicants for the junior division must apply to the relief center at 37 Pryor street.

Replacements to be sent to the camps by other states of the south include: Alabama, 1,205 juniors and 123 veterans; Florida, 988 juniors and 92 veterans; Tennessee, 906 juniors and 75 veterans; Louisiana, 1,131 juniors and 109 veterans; Mississippi, 825 juniors and 83 veterans; North Carolina, 2,725 juniors and 208 veterans; and South Carolina, 922 juniors and 123 veterans.

In the immediate future Georgia will send 130 white juniors to Fort Benning, 200 to Fort McPherson, 40 to Fort Oglethorpe and 100 to Fort Screven, and 73 colored juniors to Fort Oglethorpe. Georgia also will send seven white veterans to Fort McPherson, 20 to Benning, and 22 to Screven, and four negro veterans to Fort McClelland and eight to Fort Oglethorpe. Of the men being assembled now, 105 must be listed as white cooks, Major Senay said.

The junior C. C. C. members, ages 18 to 25, are selected through the Georgia relief commission on a proportionate basis according to the counties. Veterans are selected through the veterans' administration. The major portion of the $30 a month of the C. C. C. members goes to his dependents. The veterans must have served with the country's armed forces during a legal period of war.

frankly patriotic act, toward tiding the country through a difficult period. "But it must be plainly recognized that this is patriotism rather than business; that in the last analysis the homey feature of hoing your own garden is more desirable than having a mass meeting to run your neighbor's farm, so long as the present system of things continues."

Separate Problem.

"Meanwhile, we must all of us make it very plain that the job of amending the Glass-Steagall act of 1933 is one which may not be shirked, so far as the savings banks are concerned, they are entitled to be treated as a definite class and to be handled in the light of their own problem."

"The Glass-Steagall act, of course, does not contemplate or take account of the difference between savings banks and commercial banks, though savings banks have roughly 25 per cent of all deposits in the country."

"Our financial and industrial systems are being revolutionized. It is almost a certainty that the mechanisms in being which we see today will not be the mechanisms of a year from now, or even six months from now."

"In amending what seems to me the inevitable revision of the banking acts, I believe that we shall find ourselves headed for opportunity rather than for danger."

Postmaster-General Farley, Here for Brief Visit, Silent on Politics, But Promises To Take Leading Part in Atlanta Postoffice Dedication

Leading Atlantans are shown above bidding good-bye to Postmaster-General Farley and members of his party at Candler field after they had been entertained at luncheon by Major J. S. Cohen, democratic national committeeman for Georgia. The postmaster-general and his party stopped here en route to Meridian, Miss., where they will dedicate that city's new Postmaster-General James A. Farley, here Tuesday for a brief visit, promised to return to take a leading part in the dedication of Atlanta's new postoffice now tentatively scheduled for late next month.

The postmaster-general, who also is chairman of the democratic national committee and President Roosevelt's chief patronage dispenser, declined to discuss politics, confining his remarks here to his present southern tour and to an expression of belief that conditions are on the mend.

Mr. Farley's promise to participate in the Atlanta postoffice dedication was made to a group of leading Atlantans who were guests at a luncheon given in his honor by Major J. S. Cohen, democratic national committeeman for Georgia.

"I have seen the Atlanta postoffice from a distance," Mr. Farley said. "It looks magnificent, and I want you all to know that I'll be back here one day to help you dedicate it."

Mr. Farley, Mayor James L. Key and Major Cohen, who acted as toastmaster, were the only speakers at the luncheon. Both the mayor and the Georgia committeeman expressed a welcome to Mr. Farley and members of his party.

The postmaster-general and his party, which included Assistant Secretary of the Treasury L. W. (Ch) Robert, Atlanta engineer, arrived early Tuesday by train from Washington and visited here until 1 o'clock, when they boarded a giant plane of American Airways, Inc., for Jackson, Miss. They will fly to Meridian to dedicate the postoffice at that city today and then will proceed to Dallas, where they will be met by Vice President John N. Garner and leading democrats of that state.

Included in the postmaster-general's party was Jesse M. Jones, of Houston, that Atlanta banks could handle all the cotton sent to them and were ready to advance money to country banks throughout the south to take care of their sections.

It is understood that he urged the big bankers to make available to the smaller banks of the state a sum sufficient to make the cotton loans necessary in their hands to take the loans off their hands if they found that they were unable to carry them.

The R. F. C. chairman also is known to have sounded a note for easier credit, not only to the farmers but to small businessmen and to industrial and commercial organizations. Credit was the keynote of his remarks.

It appeared to be the consensus of the Atlanta bankers that they would handle as much of the cotton loan business as is possible themselves with the aid of the country banks and to pass on to the government's financing agency only those loans that they feel they are unable to carry. They were revealed to feel that if there is anything to be made from these loans it would be better for the local banks to make the profit than to let it go to a government agency.

"Atlanta Banks Ready."

"If the time comes," one bank executive said later, "when we need to call on the government we will be very glad to liquidate our cotton loans through the agencies offered, but the Atlanta banks are ready now to handle all the cotton the south will send to them."

"We will use government notes just in case, but right now we want to hold those notes ourselves and get that 4 per cent interest instead of passing it on to the government."

One banker called attention to statements issued by the Citizens & Southern National bank and the First National Bank of Atlanta in past years urging the farmers and country banks to apply to Atlanta for cotton money and said he understood that that position was unchanged.

Loan of 10 Cents Per Pound.

Under the plan of President Roosevelt the government will lend 10 cents per pound on cotton and will permit the loan to be paid and the cotton sold at any time the price advances beyond that figure. The Atlanta bankers are said to feel that they can carry the cotton themselves and if they cannot will transfer it to the government agency on a loan basis.

Chairman Jones, who was here with Postmaster-General Farley and other officials on their way to Meridian, Miss., and Dallas, Texas, was decidedly reluctant to talk about what went on behind the closed doors.

"I cannot say what I discussed with the Atlanta bankers," he asserted. "However, if you ask me, I think things are getting better. The large amount of money that the government is putting into circulation through the R. F. C. and the public works administration, not to mention other agencies, is doing a great deal of good. And don't forget that the NRA is just getting going and the people will feel its success before long. Decidedly we are on our way out."

reported to have conferred with the governor in the presence of Attorney-General M. J. Yeomans, who said that an outside solicitor-general could not be brought in to conduct a county investigation except on the legal disqualification of the solicitor-general of the circuit.

During the day, the grand jury received from J. Henson Tatum, city clerk, the remainder of the registration tickets requested by the special committee investigating the recent primary election. The lists of the eighth to thirteenth wards were obtained from Tatum under a subpoena duces tecum. This development followed action of the democratic subcommittee Monday night in declining to go into the second ward boxes and reopen a contest between Warren W. Leak, unsuccessful candidate, and Howard McCutcheon, winner by one vote.

"As to the actual progress of the NRA, you all know that men and women are going back to work by the thousands everywhere. Wages have been raised. Purchasing consuming power has been increased, and long stagnant trade and industry, have been revived."

"Remarkable and amazing results of the president's recovery program already have been recorded. In seven months, 2,800,000 working men and women were put back to work. Furthermore, pay rolls have increased at the rate of $3,720,000,000 a year, and additional encouraging results are reported daily."

"The postmaster-general added that a 6 per cent increase in postal business since the low point of last March when mail volume was 60 per cent of the 1929 level can be attributed directly to the nation-wide business expansion."

"The NRA drive," Farley said, "represents the unifying principle which cements the whole."

Farley described the various measures in the "stupendous program of recovery embracing every phase of the nation's economic life" launched by President Roosevelt on March 4 as comprising a unified whole, designed to "restore happiness and prosperity for all Americans."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Sue Santry's New York employer, Henry Hume, is called suddenly to Paris on business and takes along to help Mathilda Featherstone, his secretary. In the brilliant French capital two months, Sue and Mathilda use nothing of it, having to grind away at their typewriters, and Sue in a rebellious mood when they heard that a porter informs them they are in the compartment engaged for the exclusive use of a young man, he appears and curtly offers to share with them. That evening Sue falls asleep in her deck chair on the liner Tonia and when she awakes the ship is being tossed in a heavy rainstorm. As she is going over the rail when the young man of the boat train grins at her by the ankle. Sue's leg is badly wrenched and the young man, who tells her he is Jeffrey Randall, calls her a doctor. Jeffrey is sympathetic and thoughtful next day when she confides her deck chair but Sue distrusts this son of wealth. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT VII.

"All right. Here's your cane. But before we go on deck, take that chip off your shoulder, Susie. It's not becoming."

The deck. The open sky. The open sea. This was living. Sue pulled off the best she was wearing, ran her fingers through brown curls clustered by the salt air, breathed deep. The world of office routine, of dictation, of tapping typewriters was millions of miles away. There was only now, and now was deliciously happy.

"I'm about to take a couple of turns around the deck," Mathilda stowed the magazines where Sue could reach them. "That is if you are comfortable. Got to walk off some of the poundage I'm acquiring in the dining salon. Unaccustomed as I am to opulent living—"

"Don't worry about me, Matty. I'm the crest of the wave."

Mathilda was off, striding down the deck. Sue picked up a magazine. It fell open. Into on Long Island! Of all the things that might touch her life, polo was the least likely. As for Long Island, she had been invited, once, to swim at Long Beach. Bring your own sandwiches. Sue had not gone because her bathing suit had given out, and she could not afford another.

"Swell ocean—if you care for oceans," Sue came back from her reverie. Mathilda's deck chair was occupied again—by a lanky girl with weary eyes and a sullen chin. "I'm Delphine Cragston. We're at the same table, or we were until you got lucky and escaped."

"Oh—yes." What did one say to Delphine Cragston?

"It's sorta rotten—about your ankle," Delphine lit a cigarette from the one burning out. "You're wondering why I barged in on you. Had to do it. Muth—Mrs. Cragston, the mater—has been annoying you. I know."

"Your mother hasn't annoyed me, really—"

"No? All she wanted was for you to tag me on Jeff Randall. Pay no attention to it. Muth—the mater—is slightly bawdy. She's been stung by a social bee. Grand family, the Cragstons. Plenty of money, but no listing. Not a line in the Bible—beg pardon—the Social Register. It burns Muth up."

"She did speak to me about introducing you to Mr. Randall."

"She would. Look—strikes me you are a fairly good sort of egg. Forget Muth, will you? I'm not interested in meeting Jeff Randall—any more than I give a go-gang about making a curtsy to old King George and his lady with the trick hats."

"Of course, if you'd rather not—"

"Swell. Shake." Delphine Cragston extended a brown hand. "Maybe Jeff Randall is a knockout. I don't know. But I've been knocked out by the only man I'd fall for. He runs a garage over in New Jersey. Not a nickle to his name and the Social Register is just another dull headache to him. But the Standard Hutor outfit think well of him. He has inquired some gadget they think will do them good. He's Bostonish. He sounds—regular. I'm glad you told me."

"He is regular," Delphine dragged on the cigarette. "Please get me right, Miss Santry. When you see me gazing a flock of cocktails and what you think of it, it's not because I want them particularly. It's because I've got to forget. I was hauled around by Muth to forget Larry—he's the man—and ever since I've been doing the minute I land I'm going to start to remember—and if you listen closely you'll hear wedding bells in the general direct, street of New Jersey."

Sue's hand was extended. The brown hand of Delphine Cragston thrust forward to meet the friendly gesture.

"Hold everything," Delphine murmured. She was no longer frank youth appealing to the justice, to the understanding of youth. She was sophisticated, impressively weary. "Here comes Muth."

"My dear child," Mrs. Cragston was accosting. "I've searched everywhere for you. I'd like you were here with Miss Santry—with Sue."

"I was just going," Delphine snapped her cigarette toward the ship's rail.

"But you must stay," ingratiatingly. "Miss Santry—Sue—has arranged for you to meet Mr. Jeffrey Randall. I saw him in the grill. I'm sure he'll be here any minute."

"The grill? That reminds me." Delphine rose, stretched like a lazy kitten. "I have a date."

"But Delphine, my child, I've arranged—"

"Mark it 'Unfinished Business,' Muth. On the level, I have a date. I'll be seeing you—when."

"I declare, I don't know what's come over me," Mrs. Cragston watched her daughter lounge across the deck, disappear into the sun room. "You'd think, with an opportunity to meet the most eligible bachelor in the east—there he is now—he's coming this way. Oh, if she'd only waited."

Jeffrey Randall was indeed hurrying along the deck in the direction of Sue's chair. At the moment he reached the sun room door Mathilda Featherstone emerged directly into his path. Sue watched them stop, exchange greetings, then round the sun room and saunter away in the opposite direction.

"What a disappointment!" Mrs. Cragston sighed. "I thought I should meet him. Then, of course, I could manage his introduction to Delphine myself. The woman with him—she is—your companion?"

Sue suppressed a pizze grin. This was going to be fun. Mathilda urged Jeffrey. "Even now the Cragstons may be able to cut off your escape."

"Thanks I'm remaining," Jeffrey's eyes were clear over grey pools. "I—I—don't quite understand."

Very simple. I am a stenographer in the offices of Henry Hume & Company, 61 Broad street, New York city."

"Stenographer! Er—yes. Very interesting. I'm sure. Then, hopefully, young girls nowadays like to try their wings—it's more exciting—business, I suppose—than just having a good time."

"I'm not trying my wings, Mrs. Cragston," Sue's voice, incisive. "I'm earning my living."

"Oh—indeed?" Mrs. Cragston stiffened. "Quite noble, I'm sure. You'll excuse me, won't you, Miss Santry? I must find Delphine."

Sue, laughing silently at the disappearing back of Mrs. S. Van Pelt Cragston. An undercurrent of acrimony in the laugh. By the simple expedient of announcing herself as a wage earner she had rid herself of an importunate and designing woman. Why, then, should she resent the rudeness? She did not. It was another reason to take Mrs. S. Van Pelt Cragston by the shoulders and shake her until all the pearls she was wearing clattered down on the deck of the ship. If she, Sue Santry, had pearls, she'd knock better than to wear them at breakfast! What insufferable snobs! Snobs could be women who wore pearls at breakfast and put their children in shop windows! Money. Position. Neither was enough. One must have both. Sue Santry, was a pauper.

"All right, Sue," Mathilda plumped into her chair. "We thought we'd wait until the field was clear before we—"

"If you're being annoyed, Sue, I'll find a way to stop it," Jeffrey Randall's rugged jaw thrust out, belligerent. He stood by Sue's chair, foot planted apart.

Sue, shrugging. Why should she feel as she did about Jeffrey? Jeffrey wanted to be kind. To be helpful. For what reason? He was another Cragston. Higher even than a Cragston. The Cragstons of the world always had some reason for wanting to be kind to their inferiors. When the higher-ups stooped to fraternize with the lower-downs, there was a reason. Amusement, pique, excitement of the chase.

"I'm not being annoyed, I'm being amused," Sue curling lips belied the words. "Mrs. Cragston insists on interesting me in your meeting her daughter, Delphine."

"You'll pardon me if I don't subscribe to the idea," Jeffrey seated himself in the chair next to Sue's. The frown on his brow was a dour frown.

"Why not?" Sue baited. "You'd like Delphine. She's one of your own people. Extra special, not just nulls, like me—and Matty."

"I'm not meeting the young woman," Jeffrey said with biting finality. "For a number of reasons, only one of which might interest you—that is, I know all the people I care to know on this ship."

Sue, smarting under the reproof, none too gently administered. Knowing she deserved to smart. She couldn't expect to go on smiling at Jeffrey without drawing fire.

"I suppose they do seem a dull lot—to you." The thin edge of sarcasm had been inserted under the remark ought to cut.

Most of them are. Jeffrey grinned his contagious bad-boy grin, lightly peppered with freckles. Let's forget them and think about the morning. It's such a swell morning we ought to do something about it."

"You'll have to move fast," Mathilda warned. "The big game-hunting Mamma has just popped through the sun room door, headed this way. Looks like—yes, she has daughter Delphine in tow."

"What, after the shock I just gave her?" Sue, feigning horror. "I confessed to her, Matty, that we are only a couple of hired typewriters. The poor dear fied, as from the pestilence. I thought she'd gone to complain about us to the captain."

"Better run for it," Mathilda urged Jeffrey. "Even now the Cragstons may be able to cut off your escape."

"Thanks I'm remaining," Jeffrey's eyes were clear over grey pools. "I—I—don't quite understand."

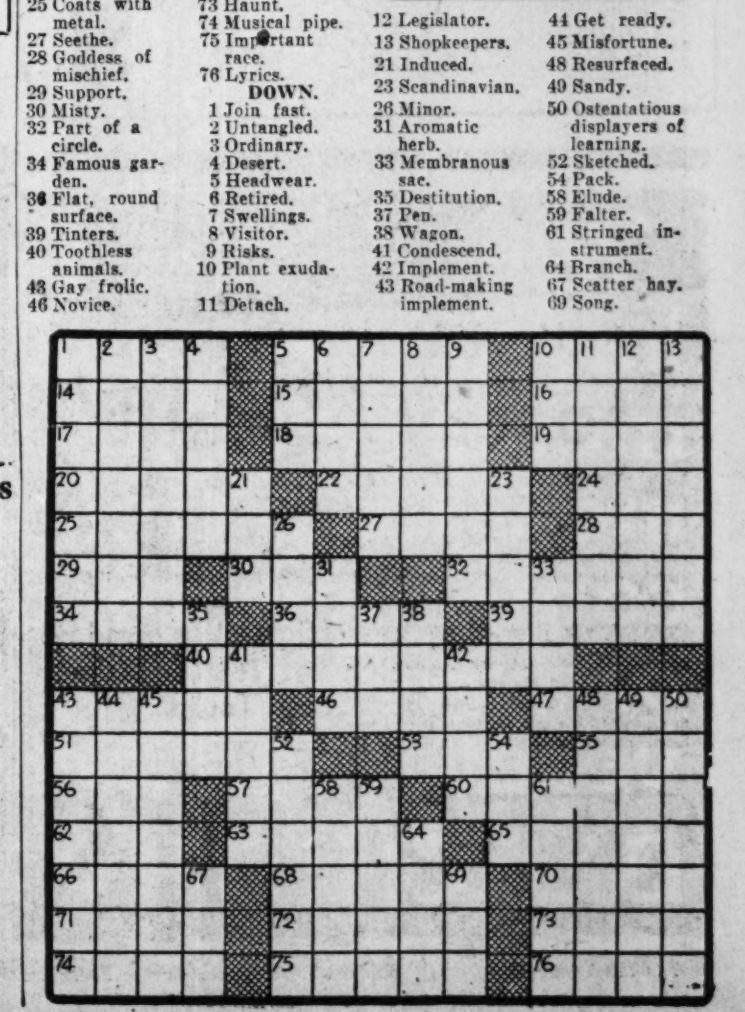

Very simple. I am a stenographer in the offices of Henry Hume & Company, 61 Broad street, New York city."

Melton, president of the Writers' Club, will speak on "The Sonnet and Lyric."

While the opening meeting of the season carries a definite program, the aim of the organization is the cultivation of literary talent through frank and helpful criticism. This method, by which a poet's work has first to stand the scrutiny of competent critics who are also his friends, is excellent preparation for the numerous editorial encounters which follow. Faults in technique and rhythm may be discovered and remedied before a series of rejections bring discouragement. All who attend the forum are urged to bring original poems of their own, and also to comment without reservation upon the work of others. From time to time the organization will publish a magazine and reputation-making magazine of poetry, with addresses and advice upon the type of work required.

ing comes he is as helpless as a tiny baby in the hands of a strong man.

A woman married to a drinking man must balance the pleasant points of her marriage with the unpleasant feature of drinking and if the scale will permit a balance she is lucky.

Many a drinking man loves his wife and children and loathes himself for the pain he causes them, but he is powerless to change his way of living. I suppose such men desire sympathy and tender treatment at the hands of their wives. He will get it, too. But there is a limit to the sacrifice that the loving wife should have to make to a drinking husband. She should have kept herself from being in the grave that he has dug for himself and his dependents.

When there are children to be considered the biggest problem confronting the wife and mother is to teach the children to respect their father. The only way it can be done is by regarding the drink habit as a disease, over which the patient has no control. If she can make her husband realize that he is a sick man, he is, there is a chance for the children to hold on to their respect for him. Oh, but it takes courage and self-control and spirituality to regard one's own pain and humiliation in the effort to make an unlovely husband and father appear lovely in the eyes of his own children, whom he sins against. It can be done and the proof is that it has been.

It is a peculiar quirk of brain that the drinking man exhibits. He knows he is chained to the habit, he knows his wife knows he is chained to it and he knows that she puts up with it because she knows it is beyond his control; yet he will lie to the bitter end, and seldom acknowledging that he cannot quit drinking, the moment he wishes it.

In every marriage there is something disagreeable to be endured. One or the other has a bad habit or a bad disposition. The woman who is married to a drinking man has the worst form of cross to bear because it involves all the roots of marriage. To begin with, a man is not himself when he drinks. He subjects his family to untold humiliations because he is out of his head. To end with, he squanders the family livelihood and unless there is an unlimited income the family suffers financial embarrassment.

All of these points are painful to the man who drinks but when the craving sets up in the blood they are swept away like so much down in a stiff breeze.

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Financial markets recovered Monday's trend today. Commodities and stocks rallied with varying degrees of briskness while dollar exchange declined. Bonds were steady.

Wheat's swift upsurge, inspired by news of government buying, checked a sag in shares around midday and imported a strong rally. Some speculative dealings. Cotton was particularly vigorous, rising more than $2 a bale on reports that federal agencies were purchasing cotton crop loans would soon become available. Grains jumped the allowable limits.

Stock market improvement ranged from fractions to around 3 points for the less excitable issues; some gains were more substantial, particularly in the case of shares which had been weakest yesterday. It seemed fair to assume that Monday's break had strengthened the technical position and that conditions were ripe for a rally.

The upturn, while not particularly active when it came, was nevertheless sustained and broad. Some brokers derived satisfaction from the ability of the industrial group to resist a definite break through the July lows.

There were net advances of a couple of points for United States Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, New York Central, Pennsylvania, American Commercial Alcohol and Chrysler. Du Pont, Celanese and Case rose 3 or more. Sales totaled $248,000 shares.

In addition to the government's buy try into the wheat market, certain aspects of the cotton picture, members of the financial community. Some observers professed to feel that business horizons were less cloudy, with labor troubles diminishing in certain directions, with the administration acting to release frozen bank deposits and with industrial employment still pointing upward. There has also been some expansion in commercial credit.

Preliminary figures on last week's car loadings indicated that the total, available Friday, may show a new high for the year.

The steel industry still appears to be making time. American Metal Market said there was no material increase in demand, but that the production ratio had managed to hold its own. However, the normal time for seasonal gain is about over.

Brokers' Views

FENNER, BEANE & UNGERLEIDER.—Both on account of technical market conditions and the current one of the new, further extension of the rally in stocks appears probable.

DOBBS & COMPANY.—If strength continues in the grain market Wednesday we should expect to see stock prices move up to the ground level Monday.

COVENS & COMPANY.—We hear that a fair-sized short interest has been built up and that the professionals are still committed to the down side.

BEER & COMPANY.—Although the rally in the latter part of Tuesday's session was encouraging it was not, in our opinion, conclusive. Indications at the close pointed to a higher opening Friday. It seems logical to believe that stock prices will anticipate a recovery.

LIVINGSTON & COMPANY.—Tuesday's rebound was a natural development. It indicates the chance that the industrial average will be able to hold above the July low in the event that further selling should occur.

COTTON OPINIONS.

FENNER, BEANE & UNGERLEIDER.—The cotton market has been somewhat quiet for the better due to the action of the government in making the cotton available in the next day or two.

HUBBARD BROTHERS & CO., TO.—TOBACCO & CO.—It may be that we have witnessed a technical correction on the upside may be witnessed.

COVENS & COMPANY.—We believe that prices might easily advance further and continue to favor purchases at present levels.

BEER & COMPANY.—We continue to favor buying cotton on recessions in importance.

LIVINGSTON & COMPANY.—Sentiment at the close Tuesday was somewhat mixed but in view of the drastic purging the market has had, we believe the upturn is likely to carry further.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

FENNER, BEANE & UNGERLEIDER.—We continue to advocate the purchase of wheat at present levels.

LIVINGSTON & COMPANY.—The action of the wheat market Tuesday indicated that the break and the indications that the recovery will carry still further.

STAGE COMEBACK

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The cur market staged a partial comeback today from Monday's drastic shakeout. The list closed firmly, no longer showing signs of weakness. The market was called upon to absorb several selling pressures before stabilizing support developed in the late dealing. Alcohols, oils and metals recorded big gains. Advances of around 3 points were shown by Hiram Walker, Humble Oil, Gulf and Newmont Mining. Utilities moved in a narrow range, modest gains of fractions to points being registered by Electric Bond & Share and American Gas & Electric.

A few losses sprinkled the list but these were mostly in inactive issues that failed to trade during the late upturn. Transfers approximated 324,000 shares compared with 350,000 yesterday.

When the instant of prayer arrived, La opened the door and leaped silently upon the dais behind the throne in which sat Oah, the false high-priestess. Close behind her came Tarzan, and in that instant both realized that they had been betrayed, for the dais was swarming with priests ready to seize them.

Already one had caught La by an arm, but before he could drag her away Tarzan sprang upon him, seized him by the neck and jerked his head backward so suddenly and with such force that the sound of his snapping vertebra could be heard across the room.

Then he raised the body high above his head and cast it into the face of the priests charging upon him. As they staggered back, he seized La and swung her into the corridor along which they had approached the throne room.

It was useless to fight, for the savage priests would eventually overcome Tarzan and tear La limb from limb. Down the corridor they ran. Behind them came the yelling horde of priests and Oah screaming for the blood of her enemies.
